HW

Many thanks for letting us see this. We took the liberty of making a copy for the rather interesting file we have on this subject. Sort of rounds it out.
I'm interested to note that you give absolutely no hint of who you think the author(s) could be, aside from the general description of the man who phoned you. On the whole, I'd say this was a very prudent way to handle it. If it had been published, and if the prime author had seen it, he still couldn't know whether you actually had picked him out.
